Young Children as Natural Scientists Presenters: Christina Curcio, Christi Reveal

AT #117627

March 11, 2020

Science in our preschool classrooms is not a complicated process, nor is it an activity that occurs separately from the normal classroom routine. Young Children as Natural Scientists will explore how almost all young children in almost all environments "do science" most of the time. Participants will discover how they can promote learning with preschool science expectations, how to facilitate everyday science in their classroom and develop a deeper understanding of what science is in relation.
